LAWRENCE-GREEN EASILY WIN CROWN IN TENNIS MATCHES

Upset Rednor and Levy in Straight Sets to Win Championship

500 FANS SEE MATCHES

Bristol Pair Showed Great Superiority at Every Stage

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 17.—Herbert Lawrence and Nelson Green, of Bristol, upset the defending champions, Abbie Rednor and Leon (Red) Levy, in straight sets to capture the City doubles tennis championship here yesterday. Battering their opponents into submission with a blasting overhead attack backed up by sound ground strokes, the two Bristol aces were watched by a crowd of 500 fans at Cadwalader Park courts. The scores were: 6-2, 6-3, 6-3. The Bristol pair was superbly superior.

From the time Umpire John Mras first called play until he announced the final result of the match, just 58 minutes later, Green and Lawrence had the defending champs on the run. They broke Rednor's service in the very first game and repeated the feat in the fifth to provide their winning margin in the first set.

Six service breaks marked the second set, but the eventual victors had the edge, cracking through each of their foes twice. Lawrence lost his service both times. Again in the third set, it was the Bristol pair's breaking through Rednor in the fourth game which gave them the necessary margin of triumph.

In the first set, Rednor and Levy attempted to out-drive their foes, but Green and Lawrence are practically unbeatable at that game and viciously smashed back almost everything the Trenton team sent across the net.

Rednor and Levy put up a much stiffer battle in the second set as they vainly strove to even up the score. But they were merely putting off the inevitable, for the Bristolians' varied repertoire of strokes and court cunning broke up almost every attempt the eventual losers made to take the offensive.

The latter team attempted to draw

DANGER AHEAD

(The Commercial Bulletin, August 8, 1936)

According to the ancient Greek story, Cassandra, beautiful daughter of King Priam of Troy, was beloved by the god Apollo who gave her the power of prophecy. When she refused to yield herself to him, he used his divine power to bring it about that although she could foresee the future, nobody would believe what she prophesied.

The princess was therefore in the unhappy position of foreseeing the fall of Troy, and all the disasters that were to come to her family, and being unable to make others believe in the prophecies and take action to prevent them from coming true. It must have been an unhappy life for the young woman to be what in American politics has been called a "calamity howler," and have no heed paid to her warnings. Of course when things happened in accordance with what she had foretold she could have the satisfaction of saying "I told you so," but the prophet of impending evil is not popular, for people prefer to listen to the optimist who sees nothing but good fortune awaiting all of us.

In "Lochiel's Warning" the aged Scotch seer declared that "coming events cast their shadows before." Nobody knows exactly what is going to happen in the future, but we can be guided by knowledge and experience. When chemistry, physics, or political economy have shown that certain combinations or actions produce disastrous results, we can escape the threatened harm by avoiding the course that leads to it.

In banking and in the financial management of an estate, a business or a nation coming events cast their shadows before, for experience has shown that spendthrift management leads surely to bankruptcy, and only by a change of policy or of management can disaster be escaped.

It is far pleasanter to be the bearer of glad tidings than to bring bad news and tell of trouble ahead, so the newspaper editor may sometimes feel himself in a position like that of Cassandra, when he sees the government of the nation, the state, or the city following a course that is sure to be disastrous if continued. There was but one Cassandra, and there are thousands of editors, and if they use a portion of their editorial columns for pointing out unwise and dangerous policies of government, it is not unlikely that their warnings will be believed and acted upon by the voters if not by those in high authority.

Wise legislation is helpful to a nation and unwise legislation is harmful. It is sometimes difficult to determine whether proposed legislation would be helpful or harmful, but when policies are proposed that have been tried in other countries and

Dies of Bullet Wounds

Camden, N. J., Aug. 17.—Shot three times when he answered the ringing doorbell of his home in Haddonfield, last Tuesday night, Curtis W. Dobbins, 28-year-old RCA Manufacturing Company office employee, died in a hospital here today.

Dobbins' death came within 48 hours after the arrest of a suspect, William J. Stephan, paroled Federal convict of this city, who police said, admitted allegedly ownership of the gun with which the victim was slain.

"We have the alibi of William J. Stephan," asserted Lawrence Doran, chief of Camden county detectives. "I wouldn't say outright that Stephens did the shooting, but I am satisfied in my own mind that he did. We have not preferred any additional charges against Stephens, but there will be a charge of a more serious nature."

Arrested in Philadelphia for allegedly failing to support his wife, Stephan was taken to Camden before being told he was suspected in the shooting.

Owens Enters Professional Ranks

London, Aug. 17.—Jesse Owens, triple winner in the 1936 Olympics and one of the greatest track stars America has ever produced, today formally entered into the professional ranks.

Already suspended by the A. A. U. for refusing to accompany the American track team on a trip to Sweden, Owens made his announcement as he left his London hotel to sign a contract at an attorney's office, with Larry Snyder, his coach, as manager.

Roberts attempted to telephone for aid, but found the telephone service had been damaged by the bolt. By other means Bristol Consolidated, Newportville and Headley Manor fire companies were summoned. Many pieces of furniture carried from the burning structure were damaged by the rain. It is estimated the loss is $35,000 to $40,000.

A barn on the farm of George Bower, Fallsington-Penn Valley Road, Falls Township, was also a prey of lightning. The large building was entirely destroyed, together with its contents of grain and machinery. The loss is placed at $2,000. Some insurance is carried on the property. Fire companies from Fallsington, Morrisville and Tullytown responded.

The third fire of the week-end was at the property known as the Overholt farm, Dolington, owned by Reba S. Watson. When lightning struck, the frame barn with the season's crops was entirely destroyed. Five animals, cows and horses, fell prey to the flames, it being impossible to get them to a place of safety. Newtown Fire Company responded. The loss is given at $6,000.

On Saturday at nine p. m., a large barn on the property of Fred Webber, Street Road, Davisville, was destroyed. Lightning is blamed for the loss. Mr. Webber had just left the place, and no other members of the family were at home. The fire was discovered by neighbors who summoned the Southampton and Richboro fire companies.

The barn, of stone construction, was an entire loss, this being estimated at $2,500. The dwelling-house, located some distance from the barn, was not in danger.

The barn of John Schiffer, two miles east of Ottsville, was struck by lightning last midnight, and destroyed, along with the season's crops and most of the machinery. A tractor, a wagon, a horse and a heifer were saved.

The barn of Joseph Mich, one mile northeast of the Schiffer farm, was struck at about the same time. The building, crops and machinery were a total loss.

Romance Features Amid City-Wrecking Holocaust

"San Francisco," which opened yesterday at the Grand Theatre, promises to become one of the most talked-about pictures in many, many months. First, it teams three of the most popular screen stars for the first time—Clark Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy.

The picture takes us into the seething, mad excitement of the Barbary Coast when it was a by-word around the world. It takes us through the disaster that leveled a beautiful city to the ground 30 years ago, in a series of the most realistic disaster scenes ever filmed.

Clark Gable offers one of his greatest characterizations as Blackie Norton, owner of the most popular resort on the Coast. Jeanette MacDonald is superb as the country girl who starts her singing career on the Barbary Coast and rises to great operatic heights, only to return to the Coast because of the man she loves. Spencer Tracy scores in an unusual role as a kindly priest who chooses the wicked street for his evangelistic work.

ADDING YEARS TO LIFE

At the beginning of the century, the average length of life for the American white man was 48 years and for the American white woman, 51. Now the average span is 59 years for the man and 63 for the woman. Eleven years have been added to the life of the average man; twelve years to that of the average woman.

How was it done? Through a better design for living, according to William L. Austin, director of the census bureau. The death rate has been lowered and the average life span lengthened through improved sanitation, higher standards of living, labor-saving inventions in the home, and advances in education and in the science and practice of medicine and surgery.

The remarkable extent of these gains becomes more impressive when we consider the forces, working the other way, which have developed since the turn of the century. The terrific mortality on our highways and the other hazards incurred by man's tendency to develop new mechanisms faster than he can learn to control them certainly make for a higher death rate. So does the generally increased nervous tension of a rather jumpy era in human history.

In the face of these unfavorable factors, however, science and education have succeeded in adding a dozen years to the average American's life expectancy. That is an inspiring net gain. Much of it, of course, may be attributed to a lowered infant mortality rate.

"Thirty years ago, out of 100,000 males born alive, 12,738 died before completing the first year of life," the census report says. "At the present time, shown by the life tables for 1930, the number dying in the first year has been cut in half, being 6,232, which gives a death rate of 62.32 per 1,000.

"In the second year of age the death rate drops to 9.93 per 1,000 and it decreases in each older year until it reaches 1.47 at the age of ten. This is the minimum. Thereafter the rate steadily increases, though rather slowly at first. It reaches 3.38 at the age of 21, 9.29 at 45, and 26.44 at the age of 60.

"At the age of 71 it equals the infantile death rate, being 65.52. At 90 it is 245.50, which means that of those who live to celebrate their 90th birthday, a little more than three-fourths will live to celebrate their 91st."

CORN SPECULATORS

Whatever other effects the drought may have had, its promotion of the crop of speculators has been phenomenal. Day after day for several weeks, prices of corn mounted. Every rumor gave a boost.

And then over night came the change. It rained somewhere out where the tall corn grows. Maybe it wasn't so much of a rain, but it was accompanied by what the reporter call a "deluge of selling" in the grain market. Prices tumbled the limit.

All of which is evidence that market news is much like sport news. The quotations were for "September corn." The speculators were playing their money on guesses. A lot of rain can fall between now and September and even a moderate amount of rain would have a big effect on the corn harvest that will begin in the middle of September.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Feb. 18, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

TULLYTOWN—There has been considerable talk of late as to having a plank laid through the village on the main street. It is something that is very much needed and only awaits the subscription of any and all who wish to walk our streets dry footed.

There were 22 votes polled on Tuesday at the Falls township polls, which was quite large considering the weather being so cold. Joseph Vansant and Townsend Stackhouse were elected supervisors, and David Carey, constable.

Mr. Joseph Sherman has purchased of Joshua Peirce a lot of ground on the canal opposite the end of Dorchester street, for the location of a saw and door factory and a planing mill, which he proposes to erect as soon as the weather will permit, in order to be ready for the Spring business. The building will be of frame, 33 by 59 feet, and two stories high.

The borough of Morrisville has passed an ordinance requiring railroad corporations to station and keep flagmen at the street crossings.

Two hundred and eighty-five straight Republican and 25 straight Democratic tickets were polled in Bristol borough, on Tuesday.

The night school in Washington Hall is greatly increasing by numbers and popularity. There are now nearly 100 scholars in attendance. Two new teachers have also been added to the school, Miss Kate Cabene and Miss Mary F. Cabene.

On Tuesday evening of last week part of the greenhouses, the packing shed, and the office adjoining of Mahlon Moon's floral establishment at Morrisville, were destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at about $4,000. Two fire companies from Trenton were soon on the ground after the alarm was given and materially aided in extinguishing the flames.

The fire-plug opposite the Gazette office was tested last Saturday in the presence of a large number of the citizens of Bristol. The results of the trial were entirely satisfactory to all concerned. Hose was attached to the plug, and a stream of water was first thrown from a point below the level of Radcliffe street against a poplar tree near the Walnut street wharf. The hose was then taken up Radcliffe street, and a stream of water thrown upon the roof of Symington Phillip's residence. Other experiments were made, which gave the following results: With a 1 1/2-inch nozzle and 50 feet of hose the stream was thrown 76 feet; with a 1 3/4-inch nozzle, 102 feet; with an inch nozzle, 104 feet; with 100 feet of hose, and the nozzle directed upward, an altitude of 80 feet was obtained. The steam engine was then brought out and placed on the wharf; with 60 pounds of steam it threw a stream about 12 feet higher than the other, as measured upon the standpipe.

The election in Bristol Borough resulted in a largely increased majority for the candidates of the Republican party. The usual majority of from 80 to 100 gave place to majorities ranging from 200 to 300. There was much interest manifested by Democrats and Republicans to get the full pole in and the unprecedented number of 728 votes were polled. In the re-election of Charles E. Scott, Burgess; and J. M. Slack, C. W. Peirce, Samuel Pike and S. S. Rue, by largely increased majorities, the citizens of Bristol testified that they had every confidence in the integrity and business capacity of these gentlemen in managing the affairs of the borough.

Bristol Township—Constable, William McEwen, D, 157; James Magill, 123. Judge of election, William S. Minster, 165; Joseph Wrick, 109. Supervisors, Joseph McCoy, 128; John Shaffer, 138; James Porter, 131; William H. Booz, D, 152. Inspector, Charles Rue, 166; Lendrum King, 116. Auditor, Edward Minster, 165; Charles R. Bicking, 108. ### SYNOPSIS

Having struck oil, the quaint Jake Tysons leave their Texas home to introduce their lovely daughter, Vernon (called "Maggie" back home), to New York society with the aid of their socially prominent, though impoverished, cousins, the Rushingtons. Slim Tyson hopes for a brilliant match for her daughter, but Vernon's thoughts are with Terry Shannon, a young engineer she met on the train. Nan Rushington—Vernon's 18-year-old, ultra-modern cousin—hopes to better her own financial status by being nice to the Tysons. Nan bemoans the loss of her father's fortune, which prevented her from financing the divorce of her latest crush "Sugar" Sarraile. Had Nan's mother been alive she, in all probability, would not have led such a giddy life. Her father was too taken up with his business worries to bother with Nan's escapades although he disapproved of her gay career. Nan takes Vernon to have her hair hennaed and a complete beauty treatment. Vernon emerges a vision of loveliness. "You've got to glitter! If you don't register at the start—you're finished before you've begun!" stressed Nan. And "glitter" Vernon certainly did! Returning to her hotel, The Splendid, Vernon again meets Terry. She introduces Nan, who gives Terry her best come-hitherish look but his gaze is all for Vernon. Nan began to think that she had erred in having this girl from Texas beautified. But Nan must have her opportunity with Terry—so she asks him to accompany them to the Van Suydam's party that night. Terry does not accept but that night Vernon receives a corsage of gardenias with no card enclosed. Were they from Terry? She could not understand why Terry, who obviously cared for her, had not jumped at the opportunity to be her escort. At the party, Vernon overhears a girl say, "Here comes Terry Shannon! Isn't he marvelous looking?" "I'll say he is," comments another, "but he's engaged!" Vernon is stunned but, later, dancing with Terry, she all but forgets what she heard. So many gallants were trying to cut in on Terry, he leads Vernon off to a staircase leading to the roof.

CHAPTER XI

With Terry's hand under Vernon's elbow and both very close together, they climbed the little winding staircase.

"If it's cold up there, I'll get a wrap for you," he suggested.

But it wasn't necessary to get a wrap. The steps led to a glass-enclosed sun-parlor, dimly lit by one swinging Chinese lantern.

Two wicker-arm chairs, with chintz cushions and foot-rests, were set in this small porch, side by side.

"Thank the Lord no one else has discovered this!" remarked Terry as Vernon gathered her long taffeta skirt about her and sank into her divan.

"I'm thirsty. There was champagne at the bar. I'd love some. Could you get it?" she asked of him recklessly.

She must learn to do as the others did. Acquire poise. Let him see she wasn't just a country bumpkin.

The champagne would give her confidence. Here was her opportunity. Alone with a wonderful man like Terry, she wanted to outdo the other girls, have her wits working in quick tempo.

"Right! Don't let anybody take that chair. I'll be back in a couple of shakes."

The moment his finely-shaped back had vanished, she took out her pocket mirror, and applied a fluff of powder to her cheeks, forehead and nose. Never had she looked prettier. She was assured of it. Her heart sang a little song of happiness.

Terry returned with two large glasses of champagne. She accepted one of them. He seated himself close beside her, holding the other. "Here's to a pretty girl."

Suddenly she thought of the unknown "Alma." Her heart sank as she asked: "Which one?"

"You, of course. Fishing?" She sipped slowly. How best to broach the subject? It was rather delicate.

But she must know. Immensely attracted to him as she was, and admitted to herself, better a swift knife-thrust than a long agony.

But all she said was: "For a foot-loose wanderer, you aren't so hopeless at making pretty speeches, when you've a mind to."

"Going to practice on me, are you? All right. Go ahead all you want." He leaned forward in his chair, looking quizzically at her.

Terry Returned With Two Glasses of Champagne. "Here's To A Pretty Girl," He Said.

"I don't know what you mean." She reddened.

"Perhaps the wish was father to the remark?"

"What shall I practice?"

"Being your own sweet self, Miss Vernon."

"I wasn't aware of being anything else. You men are so vain, I suppose you thought I was deliberately posing or something?"

He didn't reply. He sipped his champagne meditatively.

"Penny for your thoughts?" she asked.

"You should have asked that last night on the train when we were gazing up at the new moon, my child."

"I thought we talked rather comprehensively. I told you an awful lot about myself. But you were not equally communicative."

"That's the prerogative of my years. How old are you?"

"Tw—she checked herself in time—"eighteen."

"And I'm twenty-five."

"And full of common-sense, Mr. Methuselah?"

"Not when I'm with you. I have impulses."

"Interesting ones?" She sipped her champagne. It gave her a warm feeling. Made her more courageous.

"That remains to be seen. Better not tempt me too far. Remember I've been in the back of beyond for aeons. I might be the wolf waiting to carry off sweet Little Red Riding Hood!"

"Ah, that would be thr-r-r-illing! Would you carry her far—or—from this sort of thing?"

"This isn't so bad. Not when we're alone, like this. Look up at me again. Your eyes are lovely."

"Story-teller! Go on, though. I like it."

"I thought your eyes were pretty last night, when we looked up at the moon on the train. Sort of starry. They're more shadowy now. Mysterious. Deeper. What lies at the bottom of them, Vernon?"

"Secrets." Her flowerlike face was tempting as she leaned back on the chintz cushions.

"Tell me." He touched her hand. An electric thrill rushed from that point of contact to her heart.

"I was thinking about you—and a girl—"

"Yourself, you mean?"

"No. A girl called Alma—"

"Alma Fairbanks. She's in Hot Springs. Do you know her?" His face showed neither enthusiasm nor guilt.

"No. I just heard—tonight—I overheard in the conservatory—that you and she are engaged—"

"What rot! I've known Alma for donkey's years. We're friends. Nothing more."

She breathed in deep relief. "Then why did they say—"

"My child, don't you realize this town is a hot-bed of gossip?"

"As big a place as this just as gossip as little places?"

Terry said: "A lot more so, bad luck!"

"Then there wasn't any truth in what I heard over the little hedge in the conservatory?"

"Who said what?"

"A girl said to someone—I don't know who they were—that you were to be married soon to this Alma."

"Confound their gossiping tongues. You tell them to go to the devil."

"That's your business, not mine. You wanted to know what I was thinking, and I've told you."

"Would you mind if I were engaged?"

"There goes the concealed male again! You're irresistible! Why don't you get up on the roof and crow?"

"I stand rebuked, my child. I was hoping you would say yes—but instead you snub me."

"Far too many girls and women have flattered you in these twenty-five years. It sticks right out of you."

"You prick me like a porcupine. Don't be unkind, when we were getting along so nicely."

She smiled. She could have sung with joy, now she knew he was free.

Cool Millions

MARK TWAIN lamented the fact that everybody talked about the weather, but nobody did anything about it. Mark Twain died in 1910.

TODAY:

Most movie theatres are air-cooled.

Modern furnaces heat your house in winter . . . cool it in summer.

Refrigerators take just five minutes to make ice for long, tall, cooling drinks.

Railway trains cross deserts in midsummer with air-cooled sleepers and coaches.

Office buildings, cafes and restaurants are air-cooled.

Even the ships at sea carry air-conditioned salons.

If you don't believe anybody has done anything about the weather, just glance through the advertising columns of this newspaper and see how many ways you can defeat the weatherman's whims—today.

As these and other new ways of living are devised, tried and proved, they will be offered to you through newspaper advertising. Keep an eye open for them, and—along with millions of other Americans—keep cool!

Closest Seascout Contest Ever Chalked by Council

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 17 — Starting in a drizzle of rain, and winding up in darkness did not prevent the Seascout regatta at Morrisville on Friday evening from being the most competitive Seascout activity the Bucks County Seascouting Council has conducted for its young men program. First place was a tie with Andalusia and Morrisville scoring 13 points each. There was another tie for second place with nine points each for Sells-Park and Bristol. Doylestown came in third.

The base of the Morrisville Seascout Ship, The Robert Morris, is near the Delaware River on one of the inlets about two miles south of Morrisville. There was sufficient equipment, and all of the events ran off quickly. Later, after the events, the Seascouts with their Mermals and Officers were the guests of the Robert Morris for a social hour at their meeting place in the Morrisville Community House. Skipper H. Harper Stockham and Mate Charles Burgess were delightful hosts.

Commodore Thomas B. Stockham greeted the visiting ships, and served as first judge. Second judge was Field Commissioner P. P. Kemmerer of Sellersville, and third judge was Skipper

William Whitehead of Yardley, Scout Executive William F. Livermore directed the regatta with Neighborhood Commissioner Jack Burgess as starter, and Dep P. Chapman of Langhorne as scorer.

Local and nearby place winners were: Canoe race, 2nd place, Leonard Dyer and Leonard Herman, Bristol; 3rd place, Robert Chapman and John Chapman, Andalusia. Canoe upset, 2nd place, Leonard Dyer and Leonard Herman; 3rd place, Jack Scarborough and Robert Chapman. Ship etiquette was taken by up-county units. Jack Scarborough took first place in the tub race for Andalusia. Compass points were again taken by the up-county units of Sellersville-Parkside and Doylestown. Jack Scarborough showed his speed in the life jacket race by winning it for Andalusia; second place was taken for the Ship Elks, of Bristol, by Leonard Herman; and third place went to Andalusia with Robert Chapman coming in slightly ahead of the fourth man.

POSTPONE BOUTS BOOKED FOR TONIGHT AT ST. ANN'S

The bi-monthly amateur boxing show conducted by the St. Ann's Athletic Association and scheduled for tonight, has been called off until next Monday night by the athletic committee of the above organization.

Match-maker Patsy Moffo announced the cancellation when it was discovered that the local organization would not be able to procure first-class bouts for the booking. By delaying the show, Moffo will be able to furnish the local patrons with one of the best shows to be held in this vicinity.

Moffo is trying hard to re-match Vince Delia with Benny Lamonica. Arena Delia beat Lamonica in a whirlwind bout in the last show by his southpaw slugging. Moffo is also attempting to secure another top-notch performer for Tally Scharra, who fights better when he meets the best of them.

Angelo "Marshall" Mocerri, Hugh Downs and Hokey Leighton are also in for bouts and may be present on the card.

Tickets for the show will go on sale tomorrow.

GOLD CUP BOATS LIKELY TO ENTER SWEEPSTAKES

RED BANK, N. J., Aug. 17.—(INS)—Melvin Crook, of Upper Montclair, N. J., who has held the National Sweepstakes title for the past two years with his Betty V., will have plenty of competition in the forthcoming single engine championships regatta on the Shrewsbury river here, August 22 and 23, Charles Alexander, Jr., chairman of the race committee, announced today.

Five challenges have been received for the trophy, Alexander said. Jack Rutherford, of Port Washington, N. Y., will drive either his new Gold Cup boat, Ma Ja, II., or Jay Dee, Ma Ja, which was not ready for the recent Gold Cup race at Lake George, now is undergoing new tests.

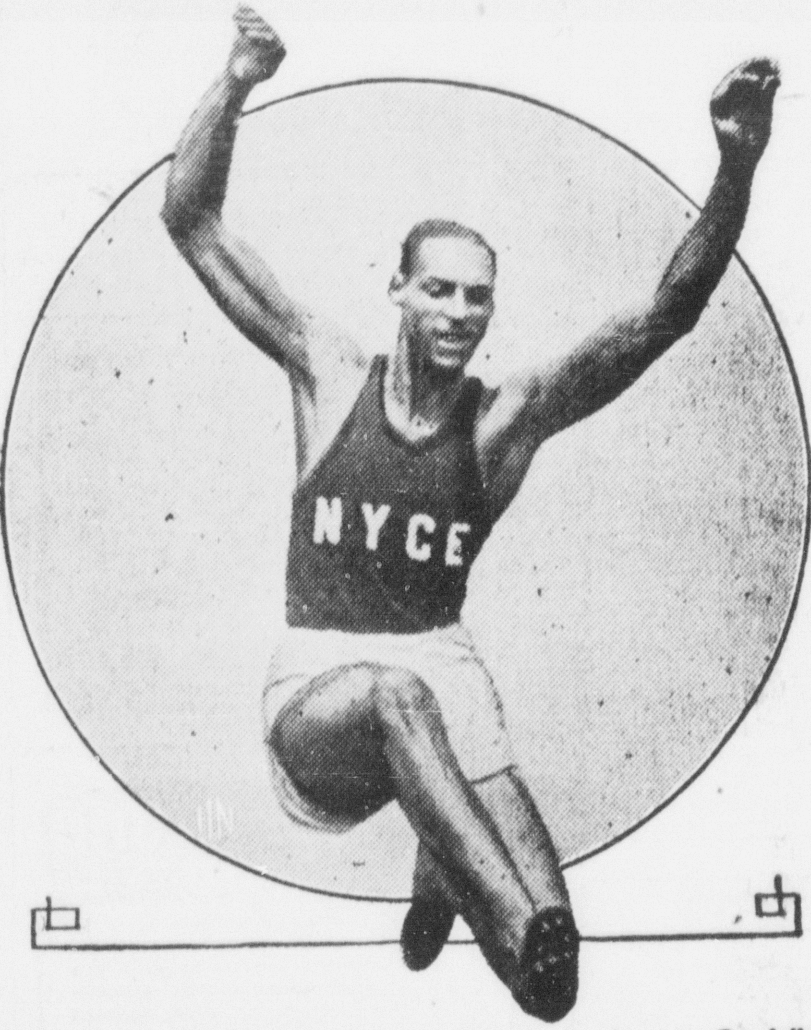

Four other new Gold Cup boats which did not start at Lake George, are Sweepstakes possibilities. These are Jay Dee Too, owned by Jack Dunn, of Miami, Fla.; El Torbellino, Art Bobrick, Long Beach, Calif.; Miss Canada II., Harold Wilson, Ingersoll, Ont., and Hotzy Totsy III., Victor Klierath, South Bend, Ind.

Other entries are Miss Saranac, Edmund Guehenheim's racer, and Sam Graham's Miss Passaic, a Sweepstakes veteran.

THIRD WARD TO PLAY ST. ANN'S TONIGHT

The Third Ward team of the Bristol Twilight League will attempt to eliminate the St. Ann's nine from the second-half race of the loop tonight on Landreth's field when the teams clash in an important contest. A victory for the Saints means a deadlock for the top position in the circuit, while a defeat gives the second-half race to the Odd Fellows. In the event of rain, the game will be played tomorrow night on the same diamond.

If St. Ann's beats the Third Ward team, the tie-off between them and the Odd Fellows will be played Thursday night on the Landreth ball diamond. The winner of this tilt will play the Hibernians, first-half champions, in the play-off series.

Charlie Whyne is expected to toss them in for the Saints tonight, with Billy Gallagher, former Bristol High tosser, doing the hill work for the Pikers.

Out to Regain His Crown

By BURNLEY

With that terrible, horrible bogey man of amateur golf, Lawson Little, out of the way, the remaining amateur linksmen can have a sigh of relief and stage a free-for-all among themselves in the effort to decide Lawson's successor.

The coming National Amateur tourney, scheduled to be held at Garden City, N. Y., next month, will be pretty much of a wide-open scramble, though there are several amateurs who merit the rating of favorites in the pre-battle dope.

One of those who on form figures to be a leading contender for Little's discarded laurels is George Dunlap, former holder of the title, who is out to regain his old crown.

Dunlap's open-face style of hitting is well suited to the layout of the Garden City links. The blond ex-champ's ability to fade his irons into a cross-wind, will come in handy on this course, and the greens there open up in the right, which is perfect for George.

Dunlap, a keen competitor with a natural flare for match play, means business this time, after taking the game rather lightly last year. Watch George at Garden City!

CYRUS E. SMITH TO LECTURE AT EDGELY

The pre-outing meeting of the Edgely Rod and Gun Club will be held tonight at Dick's Hall, Edgely.

The club has obtained Cyrus E. Smith, Hulmeville, well-known sportsman, as guest speaker. Mr. Smith has hunted both large and small game in the United States and Canada. His material is in the form of an illustrated lecture which will be shown at the club headquarters.

"Ted" Megargee has been secured to aid Mr. Smith in showing his pictures. Mr. Megargee is quite a clever amateur photographer and the club is assured of having the pictures shown under expert supervision.

Due to the fact that the club room will hold only 200 people the members should make certain that their guests come with them and not after the lecture has started. The regular meeting will be called at 7:30 with the lecture starting at eight o'clock.

Landreth Team Loses Two Out of Three Games

three singles and pushed over their second run. A home run by Cicero, the catcher, was the home team's other run in the third inning.

Against the Leaguers in Philadelphia yesterday they didn't look so good in the first game. Baines, a left hander, let the "Farmers" down with six hits, his team mates making 15 off of Praul who opposed him. Pitko's hit, two bases on balls and an infield out gave the Seeds their run in the last inning.

The second game Pleasantville was lucky to win as the decision of the umpire in the last inning when Dougherty slid home with the tying run and was declared out, ended the game. Sasse on the mound for the home club was hit hard but received wonderful support. Effinger, captain of the Penna. University team next year, playing centre field for Pleasantville, was the fielding star for the home club. Twice he took long drives from the bat of Pitko and Barrett that should have been extra base hits.

Landreth's scored two runs in the first inning of the second game, a base on balls to Malmesbury a fielder's choice and Hill's three base hit doing the trick. They added two more in the third on Barrett's hit, a sacrifice, singles by Dougherty and Pitko and Sasse's error. In the ninth with two out Malmesbury, Dougherty and Pitko singled. Malmesbury scored but Dougherty was caught at the plate on Cellesey's throw from left field.

Pitko made two brilliant catches in the field one in each tilt. Roe also fielded well for Landreth's in right field in the second game.

Lawrence-Green Easily Win Crown In Tennis Matches

Green and Lawrence away from their brutal attack and into forced errors by sending up a long series of high lobs, but the Bristol men's savage overhead smashes put away many of the shots for easy placements. Later, Rednor and Levy adopted different tactics, resorting to soft stroking, a type of play in which the new champions had previously shown themselves none too proficient. But that plan, too, went awry, for Green and Lawrence came back with a masterful performance of "pat-ball" that repeatedly caught the losers off balance.

Ample proof of the superiority of Green and Lawrence is given in the statistics, which show they scored 30 placements, just twice as many as their foes, and committed only 50 errors, as compared to 59 for the losers.

DANGER AHEAD

proved unsound in every case, the experience of other nations should not be ignored by our law-makers. No laws enacted by government can change natural laws, like gravitation and mathematics, and excessive spending combined with an unsound currency system leads eventually to financial chaos, unless checked before the movement gets beyond control.

In view of the terrific pace at which our wealth is being spent by our government, it requires no wizard to see the danger that threatens us, and it seems to be the duty of an editor repeatedly to call attention to the fact, although it might be more pleasing to readers to be told that stocks are rising in price on the stock exchanges and all's well with the world.
